

GLACIERS BLAMED FOR FAR WESTERN MOUNTAINS

Scientists Are Now Studying
Flood Effects — Quest
Starts in Yosemite

(By International News Service)
YOSEMITE, Cal., July 28.—In the hope of finding glacial records which will enable scientists to read the history of the west in much more ancient days than they have been able to do hitherto, F. E. Matthes, of the United States Geological survey, has left here, equipped with a large pack train, to explore the crest of the Sierra Nevada as far south as King's river canyon.

So far, scientists have been able to determine only that the Rocky mountain and Sierra Nevada country was invaded twice by ice. In the Mississippi valley, the eastern states and Canada, there are distinct records of at least five glacial floods. One result of Dr. Matthes' trip may be the discovery of data which will prove that the earlier ice invasion in the west in reality was two or more invasions, thereby establishing the contemporaneous character of the glacial epochs over the entire North American continent.

Early Ice Invasion
"I wish to look for evidence of still earlier ice invasions in the west than have been determined by science up to now," Dr. Matthes said. "We know of two invasions. The later one left a record which is plain and unmistakable. The autograph of the earlier one is mixed, confused. It may be that the first record is the work of two glaciers instead of one, perhaps more than two, and that they were contemporaneous with the glacial invasions of the other portions of the continent, of which we know of five. The last glacial invasion was comparatively recent, only about 25,000 years ago."

Birth of Yosemite
"I don't know what records we are going to find, of course, but if we can establish the existence of more than two glacial floods in the west, it opens many possibilities for reading the geological history of this part of the world. For instance, it might enable us to determine the approximate epoch when the last upward thrust of the Sierra Nevada range gave us the magnificent peaks in Yosemite, and along the Muir trail. That thrust raised Mt. Lytell from a mere hill of 5000 feet to one of the world's finest spires, with an altitude of 13,000 feet. It is believed the thrust occurred less than a million years ago and that belief will be confirmed if we discover the existence of more than two glacial floods in the west, for Lytell bears no traces of late glacial erosion and must have been thrust upward after the earlier glacial epochs."

Dr. Matthes and his party headed for the little used Fernandez pass, in the southeast corner of Yosemite national park, from where they will swing northward to the Devil's Post Pile, thence southward along the famous John Muir trail on the crest of the range. Returning in late September, the party will take a lower route via Tehepiti valley and Huntington lake, not following a trail, but fighting their way over virgin country.

ARTISTIC FRAMING SHOWS ART VALUES

H. C. Smith, who conducts the picture framing department of the Photo Shop, 219 East Broadway, has on display in the window of the shop several colored photographs, which show the artistic extent to which framing may be carried.

Studied effort is evident in the successful manner in which the frame has been made to blend into the colors of these photographs. Picture framing of this character goes far toward making the art qualities of a picture stand out.

"POTATO DAY" NOT VERY POPULAR HERE

This is "Potato Day," but up to noon it seemed questionable in Glendale as to whether the public was cooperating in the "proper spirit" in purchasing potatoes, as was asked by Thomas O'Neill, president of the California Vegetable Growers' association.

"Potato Day" was decreed by Governor Stephens in an effort to stimulate a greater sale of potatoes to relieve farmers of impending losses through a decline in the market and with a view to encouraging them to plant adequate crops next season.

Boys, Read This!

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Cigarette smoking is regarded by court officials throughout the country as one of the chief causes of juvenile crime in addition to the deleterious effect of tobacco on the health of boys and girls, according to an investigation just completed by the Board of Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

Questionnaires were mailed to judges of juvenile courts, and answers received by the board indicate that a large percentage of the officers who deal with juvenile crimes are convinced that cigarette smoking is a direct cause of delinquency.

Others call attention to the bad effects of the use of cigarettes on school work, with resultant truancy, idleness, bad associations and crime.

Smoking tends to break down the health and to cause abnormal viewpoints and moods, and thus lead indirectly to crime in the opinion of some judges, while others say that the use of cigarettes by minors is an effect of idleness and truancy rather than a cause.

CHURCH MEMBERS ENJOY HOME PICNIC

The picnic Tuesday, at the home of Dr. Laura Brown, at Sixth and Grand View, former home of the M. P. Harrison family, was in the nature of a little social treat for members of the missionary society of the Glendale Presbyterian church. It proved to be all that it promised and was thoroughly enjoyed by all who attended. About 50 adults were present and a number of children from the daily vacation Bible school.

The ladies arrived about 10 a. m., and were called to order by Mrs. George McDill. They have been studying "The Bible and Missions," and the chief feature of the morning session was a review of that book by chapters given by Misses J. R. Baker, George Andrews, Glen Porter, J. A. Newton, A. W. Van Loon and George McDill. These reviews dealt with the Old and the New Testament, the travels of "the book," and its influence.

At 12:30 a delicious cafeteria luncheon, of which Mrs. J. H. Culver had charge, was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Reynolds were special guests and following the luncheon, Mr. Reynolds gave a reading which was very much enjoyed. The rest of the afternoon was devoted to a social good time which ended with a Chau-tauqua salute to the hostess and all the contributors to the program.

WILLARD F. LEARNED WINS CORONA GIRL FOR HIS BRIDE

Ceremony Uniting Miss Grace
Utter to Him Performed
by Her Father

The marriage of Willard F. Learned, well known in Glendale as one of its most promising young men, and Miss Grace W. Utter of Corona, formerly of Glendale, was consummated last night at San Dimas, at the home of Mr. Walter Tangeman, who not long ago married Miss Elvira Utter, a sister of the bride of last night.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. W. Utter of Corona, father of the bride, assisted by Rev. Clifford A. Cole, minister of the Central Christian Church of Glendale. Only the immediate families of the two young people were present, save those who were participants in the ceremony. Little Bettie Scanland of Los Angeles was flower bearer; Miss Elizabeth Utter was bridesmaid for her sister and Mr. C. W. Stellar, a college chum of the groom, acted as attendant. Miss Dolores Cassell of San Dimas played the wedding march.

Bride Beautifully Attired

The bride was beautifully attired in a dress of white organdie of her own designing and workmanship. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her attendant wore pink organdie and carried pink sweet peas. The ceremony was performed amidst garlands and banks of flowers and ferns in a spacious room of the Tangeman home.

Willard Learned is one of Glendale's most popular young men. He graduated from our high school with the class of 1917 and last June received his degree from Occidental College, where he was a leader in college life. He has dedicated his life to religious work, having been the superintendent of the Central Christian Sunday school for four years. He is preaching this summer at Oceanside and with his bride will enter the College of Missions at Indianapolis, Ind., where they will both take training for missionary work in China. He is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Learned, and has lived in Glendale all his life.

Well Known in Glendale

Miss Utter is one of the splendid daughters of Rev. J. W. Utter, who founded the Christian Church here and was its minister for five years. She has been a frequent visitor in Glendale since their removal and during her college life and is well known by our young folks.

Mr. and Mrs. Learned will spend the six weeks, prior to their entrance in the special school, at Oceanside, making visits to Glendale and elsewhere.

Friends here will wish them many blessings and prophesy a great future in their chosen field of usefulness.

Cupid Busy

June marriage in California this year broke all records in the history of the State for any single month, totalling approximately 5,500, according to an announcement of L. E. Ross, head of the State Board of Vital Statistics, today.

Cupid's feat in leading more couples to the marriage altar this June than in the corresponding month last year is considered highly remarkable by the statistician as many romances which were interrupted by the World War had their culmination in the favorite month of 1920. In June last year 5,418 couples were married, this setting a record at that time.

Ross also announced that marriages generally are on the increase, there having been approximately 600 more in the first months of the year than in the same period of 1920.

CITIZEN'S DIRECTORS WILL MEET TONIGHT

Directors of the Citizens' Building company will meet tonight in the offices of the chamber of commerce to resume deferred action on bids for the erection of a two-story building on Brand boulevard between Broadway and Harvard street.

Original estimates on the building called for a valuation of $30,000, but it became necessary to increase issued stock to $40,000 recently, when it was discovered that additional costs would be attached to the construction of the building. This additional increase of stock has caused delay in the issuance of a state corporation permit.

It is quite as delightful to him to get back to Glendale as it is to his parishioners to welcome him, and he is very much pleased with the progress made on the new church that is being erected at Elk and Louise streets.

HIGH PRIESTS WILL GREET THEIR BIG CHIEF TONIGHT

Mattison B. Jones to Pay First
Official Visit to Unity
Chapter No. 116

There will be big doings tonight, by Unity Chapter No. 116, which are likely to tax the capacity of the Masonic temple, for it will be High Priests' night, and a dinner and reception will take place there, the like of which has never been given by the chapter.

It will be the occasion of the first official visit to his own chapter of Grand High Priest Mattison B. Jones, who will be received at 7:45 with the grand honors that are his due, by the high priest of the chapter, Ernest Morgan. At 8 p. m., the Royal Arch degree will be put on by visiting presiding high priests, who have been named as follows: C. M. Johnson, excellent high priest of Los Angeles Chapter No. 33; F. C. Bell, excellent high priest of Southgate Chapter No. 98, who will act as "king"; William Watson, excellent high priest of Signet Chapter No. 57, who will serve as "scribe"; Truman Parker, excellent high priest of Crown Chapter No. 72, who will represent the captain of the host; Herman E. Bennett, excellent high priest of Hollywood Chapter No. 120, who will be principal sojourner; Roy H. McCray, excellent high priest of Eastgate Chapter No. 103, who will act as Royal Arch captain; Francis H. Lemke, excellent high priest of San Pedro Chapter No. 89, who will be master of the third veil; Martin C. Veir, excellent high priest of South Pasadena Chapter No. 112, who will be master of the second veil; Rolla Hudson, excellent high priest of San Gabriel Valley Chapter No. 100, who will fill the post of master of the first veil.

Dr. Joseph Marple will be soloist; Don Lindley, organist; addresses will be made by Grand High Priest Mattison B. Jones, D. B. Richards, grand lecturer; E. B. Spence, past grand high priest; P. O. Prince, D. G. L.

It has long been the dream of Chapter No. 116 to thus entertain at dinner the high priests of nearby chapters in conjunction with the official reception of the grand high priest, and it was the pet plan of Past High Priest Mark T. Lee, who served the chapter in 1920, but the grand high priest at that time was a northern man and he was unable to bring it to pass. He is delighted to have it come about now and is doing everything possible to provide a worthy setting for so important a function. The dinner will be served at 6:30 p. m.

GLENDALÉ MASONS CONFER R. A. DEGREE

Unity Chapter No. 116, Royal Arch Masons, visited Hollywood Chapter No. 120 and conferred the Royal Arch degree on three candidates of that chapter.

An excellent dinner was served at 6:30 p. m., of which about 130 partook. Warm words of welcome were extended to the visiting companions by the excellent high priest of Hollywood Chapter, Herman E. Bennett.

The work of the degree was enhanced and rendered more impressive by the splendid rendering of "The Holy City," "The End of the Way," and other songs, by Companion Dr. Joseph Marple, who was accompanied by Companion Don C. Lindley.

After the close of the degree, further expressions of good will and cooperation were voiced by Companions Morgan, Bennett, Dale, Peet and others.

DOROTHY DRIVE TO BECOME REAL STREET

Dorothy drive is a street little known to residents of Glendale in general, but it is mighty important to the few residents owning property thereon. For more than two years this street, only a block long and extending north from Stocker, between Pacific and Columbus avenue, has been listed as a thoroughfare, though not on any map of Glendale. Now it is about to become a real street with walks, curbing, parkways and an oil and gravel surface, as the city's title to it is all cleared up with the exception of payment of some back taxes. This will be attended to in a few days and then an ordinance will be passed by the city council making it a street.

SAYS BEST COFFEE COMES FROM PERSIA

E. C. Smith of 219 South Brand says his father was a coffee taster for years and nobody could fool him on any kind of a blend. While Mocha and Java are considered by most people as the finest brands procurable, Mr. Smith says they are not, but that the highest priced and best coffee comes from the interior of Persia, where it is grown in small lots comparatively poor householders, who tend their trees very carefully, pick, sort and dry the berries with greatest care, pack the best in 75 pound sacks and then convey it, mule back, sometimes hundreds of miles to a market. The grower gets a small price a pound for it, but shipping charges and many handlers bring its value up to $3 or more a pound in this country.

CHOOSE ARCHITECT FOR NEW CHURCH

J. K. Gilkerson, chairman of deacons, has made an announcement which shows that the building committee of the Glendale Presbyterian church is not only on its way, but speeding up. This bit of news is embodied in the statement that an architect for the proposed new church has been selected in Robert H. Orr, one of the foremost church architects on the Pacific coast, who has drawn the plans for more than a score of such edifices in Southern California. Before selecting the man who is to visualize the ideals on which the members of the committee are united, and in which they have been sustained at the meetings called to canvass the matter, the committee visited many cities of the Southland to critically inspect their churches, including Long Beach, Whittier, Glendora and Pomona. Mr. Orr's work made a strong appeal and the contract with him is the result of those tours of investigation.

The committee has moved with deliberate caution because this is a building for the future, which will last a long time and serve not only the spiritual needs of its congregation, but the whole community as well. Therefore, it must be a church that will be a fitting spiritual beacon in the city that Glendale is fast becoming, as well as a structure that will meet the requirements of the Glendale Presbyterian church.

It will be very centrally located on three lots purchased for the purpose many months ago, on the northwest corner of Harvard and Louise streets, opposite Glendale high school. The cost will be about $150,000, most of which has been subscribed, and it will be a thoroughly modern church edifice with every needed provision for carrying on the religious and social work of the organization.

Trust Bank's Quarters

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Luster at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle, at little cost, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of muss.

While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger.

Dear Alice:
So here we are at last—such a lovely spot—the running stream, the song birds in the trees, fishing fine and the morning dip. This is the life to live. And the aroma from the steaming hot coffee (Booth's, of course; papa won't drink any other)! We brought a supply with us, as we can't get any like Booth's anywhere else. Will write again soon. Love to all.
Yours lovingly,

Debt

If you are having a hard time to make both ends meet you are not alone in feeling as if you were too tired to keep up the struggle and you wonder if you would come out much worse if you just let matters drift—but don't do it.

You have nothing to gain by such a course and you have much to lose.

Most people have a hard time to keep ahead of their creditors.

There are always discouragements, if you will admit it.

There are times when it seems as if one moment of debt-free life would be just ahead, perhaps, and then the unexpected thing would happen and plunge you deeper than before.

There are thousands of human beings who know how to understand your feelings. If you will buck up and look cheerful and try again it might put a new heart into another.

Even a weak, little effort at courage might help and your one effort will strengthen you for the future.

Some are working themselves out and it might as well be you.

Your handicaps are not the very worst ever. Even suppose they are the worst, you know then that you could not be having anything worse, and it is something to have gone the limit, for then you are bound to be better off later on.

CLUB ORCHESTRA IS PLANNED FOR CITY

Members of the Junior Music club, a very flourishing auxiliary of the Glendale Music club, are to meet tonight at the home of the president, Miss Veda Knapp, at 214 West Chestnut street, for the organization of a club orchestra, which will probably be directed by Mrs. Dora Gibson. When fully organized, it is expected to number between 30 and 40 players, including the following youthful violinists: Herbert Bruck, Glen Hurd, Forest Jordan and Genevieve Mulligan.

At this gathering a date will be set for a full meeting of the club next week and also for a special meeting at Thornycroft, when disabled war veterans will be entertained.

Several weeks ago a lawn fete was given at the home of Miss Knapp to raise a fund to purchase music for the proposed orchestra.

HEALTH CONDITIONS VERY GRATIFYING

Dr. J. E. Eckles, health officer of Glendale, declares that local conditions are not only satisfactory but most gratifying. There is but one case of contagious disease, so far as he has any knowledge, that being a scarlet fever patient.

The city's water supply is A-1, he says, as shown by the almost daily bacterial tests of Dr. Carl Wilson. All the trouble complained of has been the result of pipe moss which accumulated in dead ends, but whenever this condition has been discovered, those ends have been flushed out and the water cleansed.

Recent milk tests show up well as regards bacterial content, the doctor declares, and a higher percentage of butter fat than the law requires.

OLD FRIEND'S VISIT MRS. W. B. KETCHUM

Dr. and Mrs. W. B. Ketchum were surprised last evening when Mrs. Walter Parker and son, of Los Angeles, accompanied by their guests, Mrs. M. Swope and the Misses Mary and Nell McKibbin, of Georgetown, O., called at their home, 439 West Lexington drive.

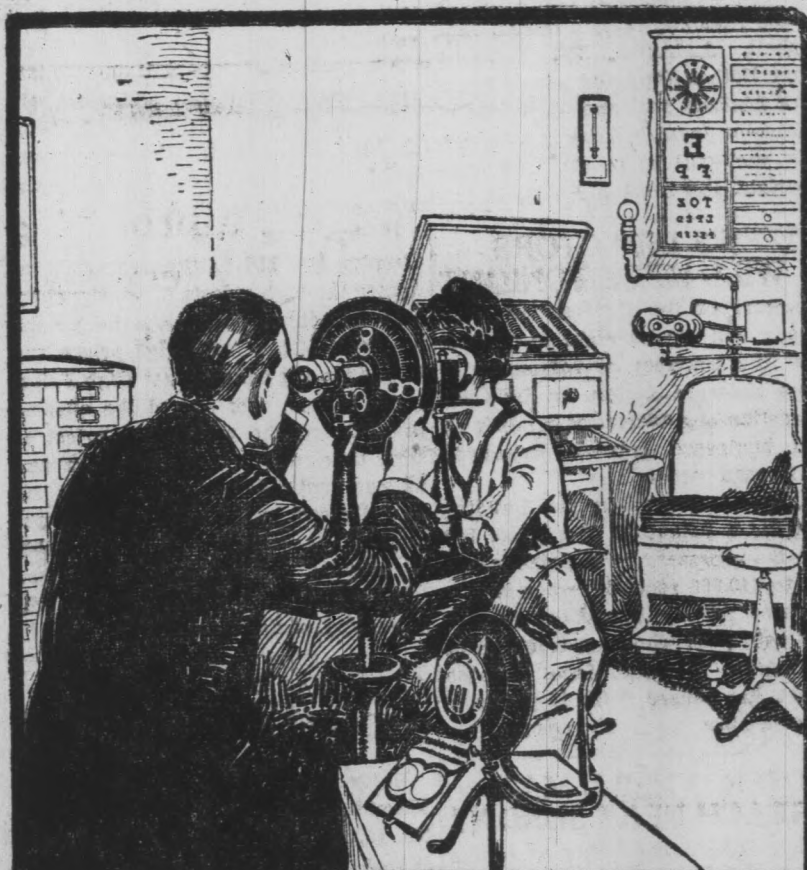

Mrs. Swope and Mrs. Ketchum were little girls together in Georgetown, and Mr. McKibbin is an old friend of both ladies. They will all be luncheon guests at the Ketchum home next week, and Mrs. Ketchum is hoping that Mrs. Swope and the Misses McKibbin will be her guests for several weeks during their visit to Southern California.

Window Cleaning Service

J. E. Chester, proprietor of the Chester Window Cleaning Service, now has regular office headquarters at 118 West Broadway. He is equipped to take care of the window cleaning in any home, store or office, making regular trips at stated intervals. Many business firms and householders are already numbered among his patrons.

Dede Furay Sues Lips

The demurrer of Walter Lips, in the suit brought against him and Mrs. Mary B. Furay and her son, Dede Furay, was yesterday rejected by Superior Judge Burnell. Lips and Anderson are alleged, by Mrs. Furay, who formerly made her home in Glendale, to have accepted $7700 to release her husband, whom they had arrested on a charge of defrauding a Texas man.

What Optical Science is doing to develop better vision

Just two pieces of glass! And yet these lenses which correct so effectively the defects of vision are possible only because of the highly-trained skill of the optical specialist, aided by scientific instruments of perfect precision. The conditions of modern life constantly increase the number of people whose efficiency or health is lowered by some impairment of eyesight—for which the remedy is glasses prescribed and fitted after a thorough examination.

To this examination the optical specialist brings knowledge and training of the highest order. He also utilizes the latest equipment and apparatus which have been perfected for precise scientific work. Science has stepped in and brought its aid to personal skill. Most people do not know when eyesight trouble really begins; usually it starts so gradually that for a long while it may not even be noticeable. Imperfect vision, if not rectified, grows worse with the years. The surest way of preserving your eyesight at maximum efficiency throughout life is to go to an optical specialist for an examination once a year.

MANY NEW VOLUMES FOR READERS AT CITY LIBRARY

Some Are Frivolous and Some Are Serious—Fiction
for Vacationists

Quite a collection of new books has arrived at the city library, but this is the vacation season and the library being short-handed in consequence, lists have not been prepared. With an eye to the summer demand for light reading, the fiction includes detective stories, and tales of mystery, but there are also books of solid worth. Among the more notable mentioned by Mrs. Alma Danford, city librarian, are:

"The Life of Queen Victoria," by Lytton Strickland. It contains many intimate personal scenes and, besides portraying the queen, pictures many notables of her reign.

"Peace Negotiations," by Robert Lansing, gives the story, from his viewpoint, of what took place around the peace table at Versailles.

"Modern Movements in Painting," by Charles Marriot, gives fundamental facts about futurist work and advanced modern art generally.

"Characterology," by Hamilton McCormick, gives underlying principles for reading character.

Heading the fiction list is that notable exposition of the Japanese question on the Pacific coast of the United States: "Seed of the Sun," by Wallace Irwin, which portrays, as though upon a screen, Japanese outposts in this state.

A Western Novel

"Prairie Flower" is a western novel by James Hendry, and is a pleasant story with which to idle away a summer day.

"The Brimming Cup," by Dorothy Canfield, is a quite typical example of that popular writer's work.

"My Son," by Corra Harris, should be read by everyone who enjoyed the humor, pathos and sarcasm of her "Circuit Rider." The present volume concerns the son of the circuit rider, who is also a Methodist preacher, but a popular city one instead of a country parson.

"The Enchanted Canyon," by Honore Wilsey, is neither a mystery nor

HOW DID YOU DIE?

By EDMUND VANCE COOKE

Did you tackle that trouble that came your way
With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day
With a craven soul and fearful?
Oh, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it,
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only how did you take it?

You are beaten to earth? Well, Well, what's that?
Come up with a smiling face!
It's nothing against you to fall down flat,
But to lie there—that's disgrace.
The harder you're thrown, why the higher you bounce,
Be proud of your blackened eye!
It isn't the fact that you're licked that counts;
It's how did you fight, and why?

And though you be done to the death, what then?
If you battled the best you could,
If you played your part in the world of men,
Why, the Critic will call it good.
Death comes with a crawl, or comes with a pounce,
And, whether he's slow or spry,
It isn't the fact that you're dead that counts,
But only how did you die?

a fairy story, but a pleasant romance of the out-of-doors.

"The Seventh Angel," by Alexander Black, suggests mysticism, but instead, it is romance, pure and simple.

"Star Dust," is by Fannie Hurst, who was made famous by "Humoresque," which crowned a series of sympathetic and humorous pictures of Jewish life. This is a story in the same field.

"Winner Take All," by Larry Evans, is a dashing story of love and adventure.

"The Desert Valley," by Jackson Gregory, is an entertaining western story, involving a search for gold and pictures of the out-of-doors.

Good Detective Story

"The Velvet Black," a detective story by Richard Washburn Child, is a regular thriller that holds the interest in suspense until the last page.

"Captain Macedoine's Daughter," by William McAfee, is a pleasant English story of seafarers and their kin.

"My South Sea Sweetheart," by Beatrice Grimshaw, does not tell the story of a daughter of the Marquesas, but, instead, is the romance of the daughter of an adventurer in the South Seas, and has a thrilling climax.

"Pawnee" is a detective story by Frank Packard, that runs true to type.

"The Unseen Ear," by Natalie Lincoln, is an acceptable mystery story.

"The Bat Wing" needs no explanation when its author's name, Sax Rohmer, is given. It is a mystery story enhanced by an Oriental setting.

"Tales of a Roll-Top Desk," by Christopher Morley, will commend itself to all who have read his "Parnassus on Wheels," and "The Haunted Book Shop."

"The Three Eyes," by Le Blanc, has the double advantage of being a detective and mystery story combined.

"Sister Sue," by Eleanor Porter, is the pretty story of the sister who becomes the mainstay of an orphaned family.

ADEQUATE POSTAL SERVICE ASKED BY C. OF C.

Mail Conditions Here Are Reviewed as Follow-Up to Recent Appeals

A letter was sent today to Dr. Hubert Work, Assistant Post Master General by the chamber of commerce reviewing the inadequacy of the postal service in Glendale. This is a follow up to the protests recently made by W. E. Evans and Dr. Henry R. Harrower, who recently visited postal authorities in Washington and urged that Glendale be given an independent postoffice.

The text of the letter to Dr. Work follows:

"Glendale, California is a city of more than 20,000 population and is growing very rapidly. It possesses six good, substantial banks, many business houses and manufacturing plants.

"It is now being served with mail service through the Los Angeles postoffice. All mail from the north coming to Glendale passes directly through Glendale and on to Los Angeles, a distance of about ten miles; from there it is worked over, and sent back to Glendale, which means a delay of from six to twenty-four hours. In answering the mail we are faced with the same condition. A letter going up state is mailed at Glendale, taken from here to Los Angeles and then from there it is sent right back through Glendale, causing a second delay of from six to twenty-four hours. This is intolerable and unjust to the business interests of Glendale.

"The sub-station in Glendale, commonly called the postoffice, is constantly short-handed, seldom is there but one window open for the sale of stamps, registration of letters, purchasing of money orders, general delivery and other business transacted with patrons of a postoffice. It is very seldom there is not a line of people at this window waiting to be served and who are compelled to wait their turn from five to twenty minutes, and this, business men cannot afford to do.

"The space allotted to the sub-

Golf Wager Test

WORCESTER, Mass., July 28.—An attempt will soon be made to drive a golf ball across Lake Quinsigamond from the Washington club to Winchester's. Jack Hickey, of the Municipal club, will make the try. It all grew out of a wager. Hickey will be given three chances. The distance across the lake is about 225 yards. The average drive with a golf ball is about 250 yards, counting the roll. Hickey is a long driver with an especially high ball, which should aid him in his attempt.

Electrocuted by Phone

station is wholly inadequate to serve a city of this magnitude. It is run with short help, which impairs the service. The writer feels, and this is the general sentiment of all our people, that Glendale is entitled to better service from the Postoffice Department.

"A petition has been filed with you asking for an independent postoffice. This has been done with but one idea in view, that of adequate and better service, and with a city growing as rapidly as this one is, we sincerely trust that you will see the many difficult problems we have before us and that you will grant the petition before you. It is just, equitable and greatly needed."

REALTY PLANS OF BALDWIN SISTERS

Miss Jeanette Baldwin of 902 South Central avenue smiled when interviewed a few days ago relative to the prospects of a big tourist hotel on the site of La Remada, the property recently purchased by herself and sisters from the Pacific Electric railroad. She admitted it was bought in the expectation that it would some day be used for that purpose, but all the stories about negotiations with the Alexandria (managements, Hayward's and others mentioned in that connection she indicated were newspaper pipe dreams, pure and simple. "We are not yet ready to entertain such a proposition," she declared, and there is nothing in it at present. That she and her sisters may be in a position to put through a big deal when opportunity offers and the time is ripe, they have bought the property running clear through to Louise street, the equivalent of two blocks. One of the first things they will do in all probability, Miss Baldwin hinted, will be to start a movement for the opening up of Maryland avenue through it. Besides this block a number of lots in the neighborhood have been purchased on speculation, some of which have already been sold at a considerable advance.

Miss Baldwin also said that the block they own in which their home is situated on South Central avenue, will probably be subdivided and sold as lots.

FAIR COMMITTEES ARE GETTING BUSY

Mrs. A. H. Montgomery and Mrs. Ella Richardson, respectively chairman of art and general chairman for Glendale, of the San Fernando valley fair, went to Mission Acres yesterday to attend a meeting of culinary chairmen from the eleven communities that are interesting themselves in the fair. Mrs. Harry Houston, of San Fernando, who is chairman of the general committee, presided over the meeting, which was held at the home of Mrs. George M. Tilden. The 16 ladies present discussed their department and were addressed by Mrs. J. W. Coffman, of Springfield, Ill., who has for many years served as judge at the Illinois state fair in Springfield; at Des Moines, Ia., and other state fairs. Out of her broad experience and expert knowledge, she was able to give many suggestions as to how the exhibit should be arranged and what it should include. She has been appointed judge of the culinary department and is therefore the more interested in it. Besides these suggestions she gave the ladies some recipes which they were delighted to receive.

On August 9 there will be a meeting at Burbank of all committee chairmen and members to line up final arrangements.

The Glendale committee, of which Mrs. A. H. Montgomery is chairman, includes Meses. A. H. Lapham, Colin Cable, Bert Woodard and Louis Abell.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock a meeting of the art committee was held at the home of Mrs. Ella Richardson, 317 North Brand boulevard, to report plans and progress.

Library Wants $20,000

The library board has asked the city council to make provision for a library budget of $20,000. This is considerably more than last year, but for years the purchases of new books has been kept down to the minimum and its patrons have complained of what they considered a niggardly policy which kept it behind other institutions of its kind. This year the board is boldly asking for enough to allow it $5000 for book purchases.

THOUGHT FOR TODAY—Character is made in the conflict. The fight is worth more than the victory. The race is more valuable than the prize.

SEPARATE PEACE OBSTACLES

It would be well for those urging a separate peace with Germany as an alternative to the Versailles treaty to look to the relations existing today between China and Germany. China was one of the few powers which did not sign the Versailles treaty, but China soon became cognizant of the fact that some sort of a treaty with Germany was essential. Negotiations for a treaty were launched and have now been completed. The projected treaty was recently laid before the Reichstag. The official correspondence was also included and one sentence made by a German plenipotentiary to the Chinese officials is worthy of notice. It follows:

"In accordance with the instructions of my government, I have the honor to inform you once more that the German government cannot at present reaffirm its general recognition of the treaty of Versailles. Such a course would be equivalent to a freely-given acknowledgment of that treaty, and might prejudice its subsequent revision."

Such is the stand which Germany is taking toward China. German officials are in no humor to grant China the same rights granted the Allies. Germany signed and ratified the Versailles treaty only because the Allies forced her to do so. It is not surprising that she will refuse to make the same agreements voluntarily to China. China is an outsider, so far as the Versailles treaty is concerned, and Germany proposes to have a more lenient peace with China.

It will occur to the American citizen that the United States is in the same boat with China. The United States is an outsider. The Knox-Porter resolution stoutly asserts our intention to claim all the rights which we would have enjoyed if we had signed the Versailles treaty. But how can we make Germany grant us such rights? There is only one way, and that is the same way as the Allies did—by force. There is no reason to suppose Germany would voluntarily grant this country the same sort of a treaty which she granted the Allies under military necessity.

President Harding no doubt recognized this imposing obstacle to a separate peace when he told Congress that it would be "wiser" to engage with Germany "under the existing treaty." The pitfalls and perils of a separate peace are too numerous.

HELP OF LOYAL IS NEEDED

Glendale is a city of homes. There are very few renters. The percentage of home owners here probably is larger than it is in any other city of its size and importance in the country. Our schools are among the best in the land. Children, apparently, are our one best crop, for the enrollment in the schools is a sure indication of the city's importance in that respect. All of which is a reminder that the virtues that have made Glendale prosperous, the fastest growing city in the land and one of the most alluring of all the suburban cities in "the playground of the nation," should be emphasized in circulars, pamphlets and letters until the name and the glories of the community are known to every person possessed of a desire to become a factor in its progress. The Chamber of Commerce is thoroughly imbued with this spirit and is devoting its energies to advertising Glendale in every possible way. The merchants and property owners of the city not already identified with the organization should get out of the ranks of the laggards at once. Their help is needed. Glendale must not be permitted to stand still and rest upon laurels already won. Join the Chamber of Commerce and by your acts show that you are an enterprising citizen and desire that fact to be known to your friends and neighbors.

Most Italian women, says a dispatch from Rome, would like to be Eve because she, of all women, had no competition. But how did Eve know whether Adam took because he liked her best, or because there was nothing better? And, besides, Eve never had the pleasure of picking out a more expensive leaf than her neighbor.

One of the saddest sights in the country is a promoter trying to kid an American city into the belief that it hungers for grand opera.

Novel Entertainment

I do not believe the East has so many cafeterias as there are in the West. Well, in Los Angeles it has become very popular to give a "cafeteria dinner," and a short time ago I attended a very novel one.

It was the event of a "housewarming" on the opening of a new bungalow, and was planned so as to give all a view of the new home and a good time with as little trouble to the hostess as possible, and to accommodate more friends than would have been possible by any other mode of entertainment.

When we arrived we were met at the door by the host and hostess attired in white caps and aprons, as chef and second cook, respectively. Their greeting was so informal that it put all at ease at once. Then, after a little tete-a-tete in the living room, in front of the cozy fireplace, we were told to form in line for the "eats," and pass out on the back veranda, keeping to the right and straight ahead. Here we found a stack of plates, and our knives and forks rolled up in napkins just as at a real cafeteria.

Next came our hot buns, and little squares of butter just inside the pantry door in the ice box, and in the kitchen stood the cook and different members of the family ready to serve us. White tape was stretched along to form an aisle like a cafeteria railing, and there, as we passed along, we were given hot steaming chicken, vegetables, salad, desert and coffee, as we chose them; and we passed on through the dining room to find a place in the little circle to eat and chat.

Then after the refreshments began the "stunt fest." Each person had been told, when invited, that he would have to furnish some "stunt," so everyone was prepared, when called upon, to do something for the amusement and entertainment of the other guests. There were music and singing, choice readings and recitations, and joke telling. It brought forth the best of everyone's talent and passed an evening pleasantly without being a burden upon the hostess. It was a comfortable, cool and very enjoyable way to eat.

STUDIO NEWS AND GOSSIP

Lottie Pickford's picture, "She Must Pay," will be released by Pathé in the fall.

Juanita Hansen's forthcoming serial has the title "A Correspondence Cowgirl."

An explosion wrecked the Yiddish theatre in the East Side of New York.

Suddenly on the stage appeared a little girl who sang an old and popular song. The audience became quiet and filed through the doors to safety.

That is one of the big dramatic heart-punches that has aroused such favorable comment in "Cheated Love," Carmel Myers' sensational Universal photodrama.

In reproducing on the screen the historical climax to his spectacular Western film, "Bob Hampton of Placer," Marshall Neilan enlisted the cooperation of the famous Blackfeet tribe.

The Blackfeet are scattered over many miles on the reservation in Montana and the task of getting a thousand of them together with the picturesque attire of the Indians as sported at massacres in the American frontier days proved no easy task.

It is not pleasant to be frequently in the presence of a man who always smiles, but without amusement.

without friendliness. It is terrible to be at the mercy of such a man, the helpless victim of his cruelties. It is maddening to be in such a situation through an error of justice, wrought by circumstantial evidence.

How Antonio Moreno, known as "the most picturesque male star on the screen," would feel and act in such a situation is revealed in "Three Sevens," a thrilling melodrama.

Jean Acker Tells a Story

Jean Acker, who played in "Her Own Money," a Paramount picture starring Ethel Clayton, was discussing with a publicity director systems of filing and one thing or another, which reminded her of a story she once heard. "An old lawyer, somewhere down South," said Jean, "had a habit of keeping his papers in a barrel and when his son came home from college he looked aghast at the manner in which the father maintained his filing system."

"We've got to put this thing in shape," said the young man.

"I dunno," answered his dad. "I've got along with things this way for twenty years—pretty late to change now."

"But his son insisted and finally induced the old man to put in a lot of cabinets and file things in modern fashion. Then he went back to college. One day an important matter came up and the old lawyer wanted to find a certain document. He searched vainly through the new files. Finally, in desperation, he got his old barrel and with the help of the office boy dumped all the papers into it once more."

"Now," he said, "drawing up a chair, 'I reckon I can find what I want.'"

Victor Schertzinger, recent Goldwyn director, will guide Jackie Coogan in the "kid's" next picture production.

POPULAR SCIENCE

The under-water steam-whistle of Stoney and Petrie, English experimenters, is a simple device producing a sound that, with a suitable receiver or hydroplane, is said to be audible four mile away. It consists of a steel disc, supported on two opposite knifeblades, and having a hole through its center. As the steam strikes the disc, the central portion passes through the hole, while the outside portion spreads out in a mushroom-like ring of bubbles, that quickly disappear and is followed by another steam impulse, with central jet and condensing mushroom ring, and so on. The rapid succession of pulsations gives rise to a musical note of great possible intensity.

Scales of measurement are now constructed directly from the wave lengths of light. A six inch scale for an American manufacturing company was lately ruled by the bureau of standards from the light waves of a neon tube as the standard of length.

Platinum, difficult to obtain for any purpose, seems to be no longer used—or only to a very limited extent—in the German lamp industry. Various less expensive metals are substituted, but for leading-in wires it is important that the material selected shall have the same coefficient of expansion as glass, and desirable that it shall give off no gases when fused into the bulb. "Platinette," an alloy of nickel and iron is reported to be largely employed.

Wires of other metals with a thin plating of platinum are also used, and nickel-steel wire with a copper coating has been tried. For telephone apparatus, tungsten has been adopted. This, however, has serious disadvantages, and especially is very difficult to work on account of its hardness. The making of point contacts with it gives much trouble.

Special schools for the mentally backward and open air schools for children of tuberculous tendencies seem to be quite natural developments, but more curious and surprising is the idea of a school for disease carriers. This is the plan proposed for segregating children found to be carriers of diphtheria infection. Cultures taken of the children of the Ross schools of California showed the germs of this disease in twenty-two per cent and separating these children from others is suggested as a safeguard. Members of the school shown by the occasional culture tests to be no longer carriers of infection would be released to the regular schools.

Silica is claimed to have produced remarkable effects in many cases of arteriosclerosis. French physicians report that sodium silicate, applied by mouth or injection into veins, has brought some bedridden patients back to active life, and relieved others of headache and dizziness, and lessened their insomnia.

In the process of J. Marcousson, a resinous coating is given tubes or hollow bodies of cement, concrete or mortar by the action of formaldehyde on phenols or other like compounds. The coating gradually becomes insoluble on exposure to air, and is thus given resistance to the action of mineral or fatty oils.

Peat production in the United States for 1920 was 72,204 short tons.

Chinamen as a race are reputed to be the most honest men in the world.

To soften old paint or varnish and make its removal easy use two parts of spirits of ammonia to one of turpentine.

The weather bureau frequently refers to it as a "mean" temperature. Laymen use adjectives of a little higher horse power.

Palace Grand

Who would believe that George Beban, who will be seen at the Palace Grand theater today in his latest production, "One Man in a Million," a Robertson-Cole superspecial release, would need inspiration to work himself up to the pitch necessary to portray highly dramatic roles? Mr. Beban has made his sentimental Italian roles live so realistically before the camera that he has earned the reputation of being the greatest character portrayal that the screen has yet revealed. Those who have seen his stage success, "The Sign of the Rose," and heard his pathetic cries for his "Rosa," will argue that he needs no inspiration.

But Mr. Beban declares that he does. He claims that on the speaking stage the artist is confronted by the audience and their personal touch, and he feels that they are in perfect harmony with his efforts. It is that psychological feeling, according to Mr. Beban, which permits him to rise to a dramatic tension necessary for artistic presentation.

But woe to the artist who poses before a camera, says Mr. Beban. Quiet is a thing unheard of. Carpenters on adjoining sets, the watchful eyes of the director and a dozen or more of other items of distraction are forever confronting him. So, instead of using a company of studio musicians, Mr. Beban has a phonograph placed on a rolling platform, so that it can be moved at a moment's notice to any location desired. He believes he saves time by not having to wait for musicians to tune up their instruments and look for proper music. From the music he gets his inspiration.

Glendale Theatre

The feminine patrons of the Glendale theatre are assured of a rare treat again today, for seen in support of Bessie Barriscale—Miss Barriscale, be it known, is the star of "The Breaking Point," a just released Hodgkinson production which will hold the screen at the above named theater—is Ethel Grey Terry, the statuesque beauty who has earned the reputation of being one of the most marvelously gowned women appearing before the camera today.

Miss Terry plays a "wicked vampire" in this great new picture, and, in her role, is given an opportunity to display some startling new dress creations. Chief among them is a Callot dinner gown—cloth-of-gold with a bodice composed mainly of jet—that represents absolutely the "dernier cri" from the French capital.

At the lawn fete, given at the home of the millionaire waster, who, lured on by her wiles, deserts his wife and child, Miss Terry appears in a creation of seal brown chameuse over which a bodice of ecru chantilly is charmingly draped.

These are but two of the many attractive frocks that go to make up Miss Terry's extensive wardrobe. Many others, of equal beauty, are shown.

SHOT INTENDED FOR GOPHER ENTERS HOME

J. B. Rohrer, 430 Palm drive, while shooting at a gopher yesterday in his front yard, elevated his shotgun too high and his neighbor across the street at 425, complained that a number of shot came through his open front door and just missed his wife. He complained to the police and Mr. Rohrer agreed to conduct his next gopher hunt with a trap or else turn his gun the other way.

Congress of Mothers Strikes at "Jazz Auto Rides," Rouge and Short Dresses

(By International News Service)

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Chaperones for young folks, and especially for those who take part in what Inspector Grant of the Washington police department calls "jazz auto rides," are being strongly advocated here, with Mrs. Giles Scott-Rafter, president of the District of Columbia Congress of Mothers, leading the way.

Inspector Grant believes that the automobile is "the greatest medium of vice," and Mrs. Rafter declares:

"The elimination of chaperones is one of the causes of the decline of morality among the younger generation—too much freedom will spoil the best of boys and girls."

"The tendency today is a feeling of repulsion against restraint, and the girls and boys are doing pretty much as they please," the police official says. "It would be well if the mother or some responsible person could accompany the young people of some of their rides and perhaps the jazz auto riding and wild parties would stop."

"Women, it would seem, are enjoying their first taste of real freedom. They are like a man who takes a drink for the first time. He says to himself, 'Oh, one drink won't hurt me,' but then he takes another and another and finally becomes intoxicated."

"That is the way with women and their new freedom. They try all these new fangled things. They think if they do it once they won't want to do it again, but finally, just like the men, they become intoxicated. And these things may be anything from jazz auto riding to spooring."

Mrs. Rafter thinks that the American girl has "too much freedom."

"The parents alone are to blame," she says. "If the girls wear skirts that are too short, rouge, smoke, spend too much money and flirt, it is their parents' fault. They allow them too much freedom."

"I have always been a firm believer in proper chaperonage. The parents should know what their daughters are doing when they are out and who their associates are. Too much freedom will spoil the best of boys and girls."

Owls on Hooks
MARTINS FERRY, O.—William Morgan, camping on Captina creek, baited two big hooks with meat to catch turtles.

Examining the hooks later, he found the bait intact. So he twirled the lines, preparatory to casting them into the stream again, and they caught in a tree, where he left them. Next morning, two large owls were found hanging on the lines, having been caught while nibbling at the meat.

ANTI-BEER MEASURE MAY BE TESTED BY "WETS"

Action to Determine Limits of Prohibition Law Said To Be Inevitable

By W. H. ATKINS,
International News Service Staff
Correspondent

WASHINGTON, July 28.—Another Supreme Court test of the constitutional limits of the Prohibition law is now inevitable, since the Senate has decided to outlaw "medicinal" beer.

Opponent of the Willis-Campbell Anti Beer bill asserted today that the measure will be declared unconstitutional. They declared that the National Prohibition act gives to Congress no authority to interdict the manufacture or sale of liquors of any kind for "non-beverage purposes."

Many Senators, in fact, strong in their antagonism to the Anti-Beer bill, today pointed out what seemed to them its absurdities. That it will not stand the test of the courts was their prediction.

Medicinal Liquors
Review of the provisions of the National Prohibition act, ratified by the Legislatures of most of the States, left to the Government, in its enforcement work, no power to prohibit purely medicinal liquors, whether spirituous or malt, according to the contention of these Senators.

"Dry" leaders, however, in this as in other matters, are irreconcilable, and they are willing to take their chances on having the new law thrown out by the courts. If it goes through the long process of litigation, through appeal from one court to another, of course the "drys" will win an advantage, which may be considered important, even if it shall be only temporary.

Extraordinary Powers Conferred

This discussion of the merits of the Anti-Beer bill, which has brought about a sharp realignment of opinion in Congress, is entirely aside from the pros and cons of prohibition from the moral viewpoint. It may be said, too, that some of the Government's chief legal advisers take the view that the Senate, following the lead of the House, which rode rough shod over all opposition that presented itself, has gone too far in the move to further raise the restrictions against alcoholic liquors, which doctors should be left free in their judgement, to prescribe for known ailments.

Of course, these opponents of the new beer legislation recognized that the Prohibition law conferred extraordinary powers upon enforcement officials in the matter of regulating the "medicinal" traffic, which, they say, is clearly legalized by the national act. But this authority, it is held, was given to govern permits and other procedure set up to surround the handling of medicinal liquors.

Contention of "Wets"

"Wet" leaders admit that Congress can go to any length to prohibit liquors for "beverage" purposes, but say that Congress has over-leaped its constitutional powers in interfering with proper use of "non-beverage" liquors of any kind. Although the "wets" have been beaten all the way in their many court contests over the "dry" laws they are still alive and active and now stand ready, it is understood, to launch the new attack alleging the unconstitutionality of anti-beer legislation, and with the United States Supreme Court as the objective.
